Bio

John Davidson is a Nashville-based songwriter, producer, and multi-instrumentalist, best known as the co-founder, guitarist, and vocalist of indie band The Brummies. The group has independently earned over 40 million streams across three albums and built a strong reputation through international touring and high-energy live shows. He's penned songs for a wide range of country artists, including a #1 hit for The Band Perry, and contributed to projects by Brett Kissel, Stephen Wilson JR., and others. In the indie and rock scenes, he's worked with acts like CAAMP, Madi Diaz, and Phillip Phillips.

Davidson also writes and produces for film, TV, and advertising, with placements on platforms like Netflix, ABC, FOX, and in campaigns for Apple, White Claw, and Hasbro. In 2024, he released a well-received children's album under the name Johnny Longlegs, with more to come.
